June 2015

The Sonoma County Economic Development Board (EDB), in partnership with Visitor Centers throughout the county, is pleased to present the 2014 Sonoma County Visitor Center Report.

This report gives an overview of what the Visitor Centers achieved during calendar year 2014 and introduces various Centers throughout the county.

Highlights from this report include:

- Visitor Centers all over Sonoma County welcomed more than 390,000 walk-in visitors, handled over 160,000 inquiries by phone, mail, or e-mail, and distributed almost 300,000 guide books and maps.

- In total, the combined hours of operation of all Visitor Centers exceeded 32,000 hours. Almost 200 volunteers all over our county have invested over 16,000 hours of their time to help at the Visitor Centers and to assist visitors during their stay in Sonoma County.

- Many Visitor Centers are using new media channels - including Facebook, Instagram, Pinterest, and LinkedIn - to promote their particular region and Sonoma County in general. The aggregate Facebook post reach for 2014, which measures how many times the various posts by the Visitor Centers are seen, is more than 650,000.

The Centers inform visitors to Sonoma County about attractions, events, hotels, restaurants, wineries, and many other things, and thus help strengthen local businesses. By providing personalized information on-site, the Visitor Centers’ services ideally complement Sonoma County Tourism’s work and help ensure that visitors get the best experience possible.

The EDB highly appreciates the active role that the Visitor Centers take in developing the local economy and we are looking forward to hearing more success stories in the years to come.

Thank you for your interest in the Economic Development Board’s research. For additional information, questions, comments, or suggestions please contact us at (707) 565-7170 or visit www.sonomaedb.org.

Visitor Centers in Sonoma County - Map

Visitor Centers play a vital role in the local tourism industry by welcoming travelers, providing information about local attractions, and organizing events for the community and tourists.

There are currently 20 active, walk-in, “meet and greet” Visitor Centers in Sonoma County. Many of them are run by local Chambers of Commerce. Some, however, are affiliated with the State Parks located in Sonoma County or are organized independently as a stand-alone Visitor Center. Despite the differences in how they are organized and funded, they all have a common goal and purpose: to inform visitors about local attractions, help them find their way around, and make their stay as pleasant and enjoyable as possible. Considering the importance of tourism for Sonoma County’s economy, the services that the Visitor Centers provide contribute considerably to the economic progress and well-being of our community.

The map shows where the Visitor Centers - or Visitors Bureaus and Information Centers, as they are also called - are located. The aggregate numbers on the following page are based on 15 Visitor Centers that provided data for their 18 locations. Specific information and an introduction of each participating Visitor Center is presented on the following pages.

Map design: Sonoma County ISD-GIS; Sonoma County Registrar of Voters; Sonoma County Public Safety Consortium; Sonoma County EDB.

Visitor Centers in Sonoma County - Combined impact

Walk-in visitors at the Visitor Centers

Throughout calendar year 2014, the Visitor Centers in Sonoma County welcomed more than 390,000 walk-in visitors at their locations. The peak was in July, when more than 55,000 people frequented one of the Centers, while the least busy month was December with slightly more than 16,000 visitors.

Depending on the month, the portion of international visitors varied between 6% and 9% with an overall average of 7%.

Assistance by phone, mail, and e-mail

In addition to the walk-in visitors, the Centers received well over 160,000 inquiries, mainly electronically (80%), but also by phone (14%) and mail (6%). Most inquiries were made in July (over 25,000), whereas the lowest number of inquiries was received in January (slightly over 8,000).

In total, the combined hours of operation of all Visitor Centers exceeded 32,000 hours.

Distribution of promotional materials

In 2014, Visitor Centers distributed almost 300,000 guide books and maps to interested parties. 23% of this material was related to Sonoma County as a whole, while the remaining 77% was promoting specific regions within Sonoma County.

New media

When looking at new media, the numbers are equally impressive: during 2014, the combined post reach on Facebook amounted to more than 650,000. Interestingly, the reach on social media fluctuates considerably and does not necessarily peak in summer, when all the other indicators do.

The reason for the peak in November and December was the successful “Holidays in Sonoma” promotion by the Sonoma Valley Visitors Bureau. Their winter marketing campaign, as well as the pictures of the new Christmas lights in Sonoma, gained a lot of traction on Facebook. During 2014 the Visitors Bureau’s Facebook likes also increased from 3,000 to almost 20,000. This staggering growth was made possible by hiring an external expert for managing the Facebook page and placing posts according to a newly devised strategy.

Based on the data at hand, monthly visitors to the Visitor Centers’ websites can vary between just over 70,000 in January, and more than 130,000 in July. In total, there were more than 1,200,000 people visiting the websites of the Visitor Centers during 2014.

About Petaluma and its Visitors Center

Picture yourself in Petaluma shopping for funky to fabulous treasures in antique galleries and boutiques in Historic Downtown, sampling artisan cheese at the source, or savoring farm-to-table Wine Country cuisine in one of the many award-winning restaurants.

Located just 32 miles north of San Francisco, Petaluma is the gateway to Sonoma County and centrally located in the North Bay, making this city a perfect home base for excursions to the Wine Country, the dramatic Sonoma Coast and the majestic redwood groves. It’s easy to stay in affordable Petaluma and sightsee in San Francisco. Or just kick back in Petaluma, exploring our downtown and taking one of several self-guided walking tours to see our architectural gems or film locations from Hollywood favorites. Then wind down with a gutsy local brew, a glass of Petaluma Gap wine, a scoop of ice cream, made by hand the old-fashioned way, or some irresistible artisan pastries.

Petaluma is accessible by airport bus or rental car from the San Francisco, Oakland, and Santa Rosa airports. If you are more of a waterway rather than highway type of traveler, cruise up the Petaluma River by boat, dock at the Turning Basin and be just steps away from dozens of restaurants, specialty shops, movies and live music.

The Petaluma Visitors Center is located in the former NWP Depot. The staff and volunteers at the Petaluma Visitors Center serve visitors from around the world, helping them with directions, offering local maps and brochures, local points of interest and others are just curious about the inside of the restored depot building.

Petaluma’s population is on the small side (59,000) but our personality is big. Our Events Calendar, on our website and in our Visitors Guide, is packed with fairs and festivals that invite visitors to share in our community spirit; whether it is by celebrating our agricultural heritage, love of the arts, riverfront location, or diverse culture.

No wonder Travel & Leisure Magazine named Petaluma one of the “Nation’s Top Ten Getaways Near a Major City” and the “#1 Fall Destination” in Harpers Bazaar!

About Redwood Coast and its Visitor Center

As the “Gateway” to Sonoma County on Redwood Coast Hwy. 1, traveling from north to south, Gualala’ s Visitor Center also functions as the headquarters for the local Chamber of Commerce.

Here on the California Redwood Coast you will find sandy beaches and coastal access for many recreational activities such as fishing, diving, surfing, kayaking or tide pooling. Walking, cycling or driving along Route 1, or simply meditating near the ocean and redwoods in the fresh air is enough. History tells us, the greater Gualala area was originally settled by Pomo Indians. The term that the natives used -qh awa’la li- means “water coming down place”.

The Visitor Center for this unique 60 mile stretch of coastline is well marked and can be found in the Forte Gualala building, located between the Surf Motel and the Seaciff Center, on the oceanside of Coastal Highway 1. Being located so close to the Sonoma/Mendocino County line (the middle of the Gualala River), the Center carries a substantial amount of promotional materials about both Sonoma and Mendocino Counties, including the communities of Fort Ross, Timber Cove, Ocean Cove, Salt Point, Stewarts Point, The Sea Ranch and Annapolis. About Russian River and its Visitor Center

The Chamber is a nonprofit organization with approximately 270 member businesses. Ranging in size from the smaller micro-business to mid-size firms to large international companies, they represent every industry sector and all areas of Western Sonoma County. While the reasons for becoming a member of the Russian River Chamber of Commerce vary widely from member to member, two main interest groups are most common:

The first features business builders who join the chamber for direct business referrals, networking opportunities, greater visibility for their business, professional development, and business opportunities. The second includes public policy advocates who value joining with others to affect public policy and taking initiative to solve problems to create a healthy environment for business and economic growth.

In addition to the aspects mentioned above, the Chamber is running two Visitor Centers in the Russian River area: The main location is at the historical bridge in Guerneville, the satellite location is at Korbel in the old train depot.

Chamber of Commerce Mission:

"The chamber of commerce is organized to promote the general welfare and prosperity of the Russian River area business community."

About Visit Santa Rosa and California Welcome Center

The California Welcome Center in Santa Rosa is operated by Visit Santa Rosa and the Santa Rosa Chamber of Commerce in partnership with Visit California Tourism. Originally opened in 1997 as the Santa Rosa Visitors Center, in 2003 it became a recognized California Welcome Center. Today there are 20 Welcome Centers in the state.

The Welcome Center is housed in the old Train Depot in the heart of Historic Railroad Square. The building was built in 1904 and was one of the few structures to survive the 1906 San Francisco earthquake. The depot is also home to the Northwestern Pacific Railroad Museum and hosts rotating Sonoma County themed artwork presented by the Sonoma County Photography Group. The Depot was made famous when it appeared in Alfred Hitchcock’s movie “Shadow of a Doubt” in 1943.

In the most recent survey by Visit California, the Santa Rosa Welcome Center was consistently rated as one of the top centers for providing information, brochures and a great retail experience. The Center is one of the few in Sonoma County to be open 361 days providing a year round experience to our visitors.

The Welcome Center and Visit Santa Rosa partner with multiple organizations in Sonoma County, including Sonoma County Tourism, the City of Santa Rosa, the Santa Rosa Chamber of Commerce, the Sonoma County Economic Development Board, the Historic Railroad Square Association and Sonoma County BEST along with our museums, attractions, wineries, hotels, restaurants and retail establishments.

About Fort Ross State Park and its Visitor Center

The Visitor Center was built in 1985 by California State Parks and is operated by the cooperating association, Fort Ross Conservancy. The Conservancy maintains a fully stocked book and gift shop with the largest selection of Russian American History north of San Francisco, and also maintains the library, and the auditorium. The Visitor Center, the gateway to the park, is tucked inside a grove of trees alongside the main parking lot. It provides a comfortable place to begin your park visit by helping you get oriented to the park’s cultural, natural, and recreational resources and by providing a gathering place for groups and interpretive programs.

The Visitor Center accommodates special events, guided tours, and educational seminars, and it provides a valuable resource to the Fort Ross community. It is available for rent for special events after hours; contact info@fortross.org for more information. The center contains several rooms with different functions.

Fort Ross Conservancy bookshop sells books, memorabilia, jewelry, and childrens items related to Fort Ross’ natural and cultural history. It also carries a nice selection of Russian chocolate and Russian snack foods as well as a wonderful selection of natural history guides, historical books related to the breadth of Fort Ross history, and hard-to-find books on Russian America. For FRC members and visiting scholars, FRC provides access to an extensive research library of Fort Ross-related documents.

The auditorium, with its large fireplace and expansive picture windows, provides comfortable seating for up to 70 people. During park hours you can watch the 18-minute Fort Ross documentary that introduces the park’s history with stunning visuals. And on windy days it is the perfect place to come in from the cold!

About Stewards of the Coast and Armstrong Redwoods Visitor Center

Stewards of the Coast and Redwoods is a non-profit organization that partners with the Russian River Sector of California State Parks. The sector includes Armstrong Redwoods State Natural Reserve (outside Guerneville), Austin Creek State Recreation Area (a park Stewards is now operating), Sonoma Coast State Park (from Bodega Bay to Jenner) and includes the Willow Creek watershed. State Parks depends on Stewards to provide funding for the “Volunteers in Parks” program, educational and interpretive activities, for resource management and stewardship projects, and to assist in the development of interpretive facilities and displays.

The State Parks of Sonoma County’s coast and Russian River valley are rich in natural and cultural history, biological diversity and distinctive geology.

Stewards is protecting Austin Creek State Recreation Area with volunteer patrols and stewardship support. They have reopened Bullfrog Pond Campground and three backcountry campsites. They are providing public access and programs in closed areas on the Sonoma Coast, as well as continuing all their existing education and stewardship programs during these unprecedented times. Stewards launched a new Marine Education Program in 2014, which includes their Mobile Marine Van, a.k.a. Stewards Ship. The Nature Stores located inside our Visitor Centers help to provide funding for educational programs in its parks.

Our mission is to promote education, preservation and restoration of the natural and cultural resources of Russian River area State Parks through interpretation and public stewardship. We do this by providing park visitors of all ages with a variety of programs and opportunities to experience and explore these exceptional parks.

The Sonoma County Economic Development Board would also like to thank Don Bennett, Wendy Peterson, and Sonoma County Tourism for their input on this report.

The Sonoma County Visitor Center Report was prepared by the Economic Development Board’s project coordinator Corinne Knopfel.

Methodology

The Sonoma County Economic Development Board collected data from the participating Visitor Centers through a standardized spreadsheet, which was structured in way that allowed the data to be as detailed as possible. 15 Visitor Centers returned the spreadsheet with information on their 18 locations for calendar year 2014. The numbers were then aggregated to reach an estimate of how many people demanded the Centers’ services in the previous year.

Please note that exact counts were not always available. In these cases, we asked the Centers to provide realistic estimates of their numbers. Therefore, the numbers in this report might vary to a certain extent from the actual figures. However, the intent of this report is to provide the public with a general overview of how diverse our Visitor Centers are and how they serve visitors to Sonoma County.
